Seeking To Justify Program Inequities

WASHINGTON (AP) - A Nixon administration official said today that an effort will be made to remove inequities from President Nixon's wage-price freeze, particularly those affecting workers.

"I think in due time these decisions will be made," said Asst. Secretary of Labor W. J. Usery.

Usery commented at a news conference after a peacemaking visit by top Labor Department officials Thursday to ask AFL-CIO President George Meany's cooperation in government economic plans for after the freeze.

Usery said it has not yet been decided by the administration whether workers later will get retroactive pay for scheduled wage hikes held up by the freeze.

But he added that he believes that "as much as possible ... people should get what they have coming to them" from labor

Usery said economic plans for after the freeze are still in the talking stage.

Meanwhile, it was announced that leaders of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employes from throughout the nation will meet in Minneapolis this weekend to map strategy for opposing the wage-price freeze.

Possible Break For Educators

2.1 million school teachers will report for the first bell this fall split into two distinct pay classes under President Nixon's 90-day wage-price freeze.

Hundreds of thousands will receive scheduled salary increases and hundreds of thousands won't. Beyond that, no one in government is willing to venture an

It depends on what types of contracts exist within school systems and when individual contracts are effective. "It's impossible to tell," said one Cost of Living Council spokesman. "There are too many different types of contracts.'

The National Education Association asserts that 80 per cent of the teachers are eligible for salary increases despite the freeze. Privately, government officials doubt that figure but are not willing to challenge it publicly.

In its third policy statement on the question Thursday night, the council attempted to clear up confusion on the teacher-pay issue. It held officially:

-A teacher working in a school system having a system-wide master contract to Aug. 15, the new rate is permissible."

WASHINGTON (AP) - The nation's effective before the freeze began Aug. 15 most likely will get a scheduled salary increase. If any one teacher or worker covered by the master contract collected the new rate before the freeze began, then all teachers will get a raise, regardless of -A teacher working under an individual contract with his school board most likely will not get a scheduled salary increase. But there are wide variances in contracts by school districts and some may be able to escape the freeze, depending on when the contract period actually begins.

Here's how the council attempted to clarify the issue governing individual

Awaiting Clarification

Dr. T. J. Norris, superintendent of schools, said Friday he was awaiting a clarification from state officials on exactly what a system-wide master contract is. Norris said state officials, in turn, are awaiting a similar clarification from the Office of Emergency Preparedness in Washington.

Norris said the school board does hire all its teachers at an April meeting and added this would seem to indicate that contractual agreements are made on a "blanket" basis. He emphasized, however, that no firm label had ever been used for describing the district's contract

The President's economic program won a major victory in the foreign exchange market today.

The Japanese government announced it will let the yen float on the foreign exchange market beginning Saturday. The yen had been a major target of the import portion of Nixon's program.

The Japanese action is expected to improve the U.S. balance of trade and came a day after the Commerce Department announced a trade deficit in July for the fourth consecutive month.

After Nixon announced Aug. 15 the suspension of the gold standard and the imposition of the 10 per cent import surcharge, the Japanese government attempted to hold the yen to a parity of 360

It said today's action, allowing the yen to find its own rate according to the demand and supply, would be temporary.

Earlier, the administration in a peacemaking meeting with AFL-CIO President George Meany, guaranteed organized labor a role in determining what will follow the domestic 90-day wage-price freeze.

"Mr. Meany's response was to give us a good hearing and showing great concern about many aspects of the problems the freeze was causing, and that he hoped he would recognize those problems," Labor Secretary James D. Hodgson said after Thursday's session with Meany.

Asst. Labor Secretary W.J. Usery met briefly with federation secretary-treasurer Lane Kirkland, apparently laying the groundwork for the Hodgson-Meany talk.

What is to folllow the freeze has become a dominant question for economic planners. And the Meany-Hodgson meeting was significant because of the labor chief's heavy criticism of President Nixon's new economic program.

The administration's chief of planning for Stage 2 of the anti-inflation drive, Herbert Stein, said "We would most devoutly hope to avoid ... movement in the direction of wage and price control.

The horse show in the coliseum Friday night will be no "child's play" though, as some of the top three and five-gaited and fine harness horses in the country compete for $25,000 in prize money.

Ernest Strickler, superintendent of horse shows at the fair, said that the winner of the five-gaited competition will take home $15,000 and a world championship from the fair, while the three-gaited and fine harness winners will each receive $5,000 in first place money.

No one will know which horses will be entered in championship competition until show time, Strickler said, as an owner can enter the horse which he feels has the best chances. Horses must be previous winners in their various classes, however.

Other championship contests to be decided at the show are the hunter and roadster bike championships and the weanling, parade and walking horse championships.

Harness and pony racing continues at the fair Friday, featuring a "free for all" trot. Headlining the races is "Anne J," owned by Charles Jennings of Boone, Iowa, and driven by Bill Ellis. The heavy favorite had

Sedalia Share Hiked In Cable Assessment

The city's share of the revised assessment for Cablevision, Inc., 600 South Osage, will climb from $2,100 to $12,950, according to figures released Friday by Pettis County Assessor Jerry Trotter. Trotter said that he had received clarification from the Missouri State Tax Commission on how the cable television firm's properties in the city could be valuated. Trotter said that state officials had informed him in correspondence received Friday that Cablevision's property located in the county, such as towers and equipment, located outside the city limits could only be assessed by the county and money received thereof would go to the Trotter said, that by the same token, property, both real and personal, inside the city limits, would be assessed by the city and county both. Trotter said the ratio on the assessment within the city limits would be divided so the county would get 65 per cent of the tax monies and the city would get 35 per cent.

The Pettis County Board of Equalization set the assessment for Cablevision's property in the county at $65,000. Equipment and other property, such as transmission lines that the company maintained within the city limits was assessed at $37,000, Trotter said.

In effect, the new rules outlined by Trotter, mean that the city's share of the total revenues in taxes from Cablevision would rise from about 5 per cent to almost 13 per cent. The total valuation set for all properties of Cablevision in the city and county comes to $102,000 this year.

Previously, the firm's assessment had been $39,600, of which the city received around $2,100 with the balance going to the

Trotter said the reasoning behind the previous tax assessment policy was based

Several area ministers are organizing to oppose an Oct. 5 statewide referendum to legalize parimutuel betting on horse racing, according to the Rev. Orval F. Woolery, the newly-elected president of the Sedalia-Pettis County Ministers Association.

In an interview with The Democrat-Capital Thursday. Woolery said that he is writing letters to association members urging them to oppose the statewide move to authorize betting. Woolery, who is also superintendent of missions of the Harmony Baptist Association, said that church leaders of different denominations in Missouri are supporting the Christian Civic Foundation, (C.C.F.), St. Louis, in its campaign against legalizing gambling.

The C.C.F., according to Mr. Woolery, is an "inter-faith organization" which seeks to Christian ethics. Mr. Woolery said he is

NEW YORK - A full name has been chosen for a Bible translation now under way. The translation, which is being sponsored by New York Bible Society International and is engaging the efforts of more than 100 evangelical scholars, will be known as The New International Bible; A the sub-title only (ACT).

The Rev. Youngve R.

Kindberg, executive director of the Society, in announcing the change of name, said: "We have chosen the name, The New International Bible, because the translation will be used throughout the world, and also because it is being worked on by scholars from all over the English-speaking world.

"As the books in the new translation are completed," Mr. Kindberg added, "a special committee in England is at work 'anglicizing' them to conform with English style in spelling, choice of words and idioms so that a distinctly British edition of the translation may be published. No changes will be made that will involve interpretations differing from the original languages, that will be on a different level of literary style, or that will be based on different textual readings."

Besides Americans, scholars engaged in the work include those from Canada, New Zealand, Australia and agement.

Asked why he is opposed to betting on horse racing, Mr. Woolery replied, "I'm not taking a negative attitude. I'm for anything that will upbuild and strengthen people's character. Betting certainly does not build character." He said he is opposed to betting "because it is morally wrong to get something for nothing. So many people get hooked on gambling, and this can ruin their families," he contended.

The Rev. Ray Grubb, pastor of Green Ridge Baptist Church, said he is opposed to gambling "because of what gambling can lead to. . . it destroys families."

The Rev. Eugene Trice, pastor of Epworth United Methodist Church and the newly-elected secretary of the Ministers Association, said he is opposed to legalizing betting for two reasons: "because it brings organized crime and usually the money comes out of the pockets of people who cannot afford it."

Contemporary Translation. It has previously been known by going on in several Englishspeaking countries simultaneously. The scholars, drawn from many denominations but all conservative and evangelical in theological outlook, work together in small groups, translation portions of Scripture. They employ both ancient texts and such new textual witnesses as the Dead Sea scrolls. As they complete their work, it is gone over by supervisory committees. As the very top is a 14-member Committee on Bible Translation, a body of highly competent and dedicated

Dr. Edwin Palmer, calls a "high view of Scripture." "In Bible translation," Dr. Palmer explained, "it is necessary to use the best professional skills possible. We are attempting to do just that. But it is also important to rely on the Holy Spirit. All the translators and editors are men who confess that Jesus Christ is their Lord, God and Savior. And they believe in the infallibility of the Bible. They believe that the Holy Spirit is the prime Author of both the Old and New Testaments. Although the Spirit does not inspire translators in the same way He inspired the original writers of Scripture, yet He is essential for accurate translation.

"The translators," added Dr. Palmer, "all have a firm belief

The work of translating is in what they call the 'harmony going on in several English- of the Bible,' holding that the Old Testament and New Testament are in agreement." He cited a recent example of how this belief works out in actual translation:

"The text of Amos 5:25 could legitimately be translated as a statement of fact: 'You Israelites brought sacrifices and offerings to me in the desert for forty years.' This was substantially the tentative translation placed before a recent Intermediate Editorial Committee by the group which had worked on it previously. But the group had overlooked the fact that now this verse is quoted in the New Testament, scholars having in common in Acts 7:42. There it is rendered what its executive secretary, as a question (with an implied answer 'No'), and not as a factual observation.

"The Hebrew could be understood either way; but for the Committee, the Acts quotation settled the matter: it must be translated as a question. The translators believed that the Divine Author behind both Amos and Acts was one and the same, and that what He communicated in both places was entirely true and harmonious."

The target date for completion of the New Testament portion of the New International Bible is 1973. The overall Committee on Bible Translation worked for several weeks this summer at Calvin Theological Seminary in Grand Rapids. Completed so far are the New Testament book of John, Galatians, I and II Thessalonians and James. The Committee also completed several books of the Old Testament: Judges, Jonah, Micah, Habakkuk and Amos.

"These are now in final form," said Dr. Palmer. "But many other portions of Scripture are now on their way through the long process going from committee to committee for suggestions, revisions and styling.

"But even the 'final form may not be the last word on their translations. The completed books are being mimeographed and placed in the hands of pastors, Bible

What has happened in the 10 days since the President's historic announcement of a new economic policy?

Things haven't yet gone as envisaged in the foreign markets.

So far, the dollar has slipped in the neighborhood of a little more than two per cent, not the expected 15 per cent.

This means American goods are not that much cheaper abroad. Imports are more expensive here not primarily because of the dollar's new value but because of the new 10 per cent traiff Nixon put on them.

In Geneva on Wednesday, the 54-nation General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade-GATTset up a study group to examine the surcharge. The study group was told to "take into account the nature of the U.S. balance of payments difficulties" and report back by

Sept. 20. GATT members pledged to accept the surcharge without retaliation but made it clear they are strongly opposed to it and want it lifted as soon as

Failure of the dollar to fall as expected means that the extra tariff, the surcharge, is now America's big stick in inter-national bargaining. It keeps out some imports and thus keeps down the deficit in the balance of payments. At the same time, it provides a bargaining weight for dealing with other countries. The surcharge hurts their exports to the United States, so they want to get rid of it.

This means the United States, when the matter finally is decided, can say: "Revalue your currency upward and we will take off the surcharge.'

In the meantime, the dollar may not stay around its present level and new market maneuverings could bring some of the changes that had been anticiJames Kane will preach on the subject, "Won't You Please Come Back?" "The Spirit of

Ichord Edging Closer

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) - Congressman Richard H. Ichord today edged a little closer to announcing for governor of Missouri by urging state legislators to re-align congressional districts without regard to his future in the 8th District. In the letter to legislators, released by his office in Washington, Ichord said:

"The purpose of this letter is to urge the General Assembly to draw congressional lines either in a special session or early in the 1972 regular session without regard for the political future of the incumbent congressman from the 8th Congressional District.

'This should make the task of redistricting much easier.'

Recently, Ichord toured much of the state for the purpose, he said, of assessing the attitudes of the voters on current issues and problems and to decide whether to get into the Democratic primary for governor.

He has held several news conferences to announce his continuing interest in the race for governor next year.

Ichord said he wrote the letter to legislators because some people are saying he would not give up 12 years of seniority in

Congress. "These same persons then reason - without basis, I assure you — that I am offering the possibility of my candidacy as a lever to insure the drawing of congressional district lines favorable to my seeking re-election to Congress," Ichord

"If I do become a candidate and am elected and you are reelected." he concluded in the letter, "it is my hope that together we will be able to develop and implement programs that will deal effectively with the myriad problems facing Missouri.'

Attack Claims 5 Gls

SAIGON (AP) - North Vietnamese troops assaulted two U.S. armored cavalry patrols south of Da Nang Thursday and killed five Americans in one of the attacks. It was one of the heaviest U.S. losses in months. Twelve other Americans were wounded, three armored vehicles were destroyed and a fourth was damaged. Enemy losses were not known. One patrol from the Americal division was hit 16 miles south of Da Nang shortly after it camped for the night. The North Vietnamese attacked with rocket-grenades, machine guns and rifles. It was in this attack that the five Americans were killed and seven were wounded. The steelpiercing grenades destroyed two armored personnel carriers and a Sheridan tank before rocket-firing U.S. helicopters and artillery broke up the at-

The American toll five dead was half the number killed all last week, according to the U.S. Command casualty summary issued Thursday. Other such losses recently included five U.S. troops killed in an ambush Aug. 5, also south of Da Nang, and seven killed Aug. 12 when their helicopter was shot down near the demilitarized zone. Fourteen miles to the south, North Vietnamese troops made a similar attack earlier in the day on another armored patrol.

Juvenile Program Funded

The Missouri Jaycees received a $50,000 federal grant to organize a grassroots campaign against juvenile delinquency, it was learned Thursday.

A Jaycee spokesman said two full-time field representatives for the Department of Health, Education and Welfare funded program have been hired.

Kenneth E. Moore, 614 South Barrett, who served as state Jaycee executive vice-president for two years, and Greg A. Goldberg, former deputy juvenile officer for the Jackson County court system, were named to administer the project, labeled "Juvenile Concern.

Moore said Thursday evening he and Goldberg will pool their resources in initiating an awareness program and then work on juvenile delinquency solutions.

"We want to make communities around the state aware of the problem." Moore said. "From there, we hope to establish programs to correct some of the problems.

Lloyd Lamers, Chillicothe, chairman of the Missouri Jaycee Crime and Correction Project, said the program would be "an organized, concerned attack on a problem too often overlooked or poorly dealt with."

Lamers said the year-long project will be headquartered in Jefferson City.

Moore and Goldberg are to begin touring the state Sept. 1 to organize local Jaycee crime and delinquency committees, help in analysis of youth services and coordinate their work with the Missouri Law Enforcement Assistance Council, which provided help in applying for the federal grant, Moore said.

Moore explained that Denver Wright, St. Louis, a former state Jaycee official, initiated a task force last year to study juvenile delinquency across the state. His committee visited various juvenile detention facilities in Missouri and made a report to the state legislature, Moore said.

In February, the Jaycees applied to the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, and were granted the funds in June, according to Moore

Predict Jarring

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) - Diplomatic sources predicted today that Gunnar V. Jarring will make a new effort next month to get the Israelis and Arabs talking. They said Jarring, the Swedish ambassador to Moscow, will arrive in New York about mid-September to resume his role as special U.N. envoy for the Middle East. He will begin by talking with the Israeli and Arab foreign ministers who are coming to New York for the U.N. General Assembly. Jarring has been trying since the end of 1967 to get the adversaries of the six-day war to open negotiations for a settlement. The closest he has come was indirect talks last winter between the Israeli, Egyptian and Jordanian delegates to the United Nations with Jarring acting as go-between. Neither the Jews nor the Arabs gave any ground, and Jarring went back to Moscow. Some sources said that while on vacation in Sweden this summer, Jarring offered to return to New York to talk with the Arab and Israeli ambassadors again. They said Secretary-General U Thant advised him instead to give the United States more For Local Woman time to try to work out an interim Egyptian-Israeli agreement to reopen the Suez Canal. But chances for such an agreement do not look good after Asst. Secretary of State Joseph Sisco's recent unproductive vis> it to Israel. The U.N. delegates from the Big Four-the United States, the Soviet Union, France and Britain-also have been unsuccessful in their efforts to lend a hand to a settlement. After a meeting on Sept. 9, they probably will turn the matter over to their foreign ministers when they come to New York toward the end of the month for the Assembly. So far, none of this conferring appears likely to produce any movement toward a settlement. The prospect is that in October or November the Assembly will hold another debate on the Middle East with a rerun of the Arab and Israeli positions.

Increase Value of Yen

TOKYO (AP) - The Japanese government announced today it will let the yen's value increase on the foreign exchange market, handing President Nixon a major victory in his program to strengthen U.S. trade.

Japan's decision came after two weeks of trying to hold the yen to a parity of 360-tothe-dollar, an exchange rate which the United States claimed left the yen undervalued. The new trading in the yen begins Saturday.

The rate was the chief target of Nixon's Aug. 15 announcement suspending the dollar's tie to gold and imposing a 10 per cent surcharge on imports to the United A yen with increased value will make

Japanese exports more expensive on the U.S. market, and, conversely, will make

U.S. exports less expensive on the Japanese market. Finance Minister Mikio Mizuta said floating the yen-allowing it to find its own exchange rate according to supply and demand-would be a temporary measure. Tadashi Sasaki, governor of the Bank of Japan, said in a supplementary statement that if the yen's margin of fluctuation against the dollar becomes too large, the central bank will buy dollars to stabilize the Sasaki gave no indication at what point the central bank might step in.

The U.S. Treasury issued a brief statement in Washington saying it welcomed the floatation "as a further step toward a more realistic realignment of international exchange rates which the President envisioned in his address to the nation."

European and British bankers and Common Market officials were unanimous in hailing the Japanese decision. They said it will take some of the uncertainty out of the confused international monetary picture.

The Bank of Japan had bought about $4 billion in the last two weeks to keep the value of the yen from climbing. Japan was the only major trading nation that tried to maintain its official exchange rate despite Nixon's economic measures. The government feared increasing the yen's value would cut into Japan's booming export trade and thus have a deflationary effect at a time when the swift expansion of recent years already appears to be slowing. But pressure from market conditions-the Bank of Japan had to buy a record $1.2 billion today alone before the announcement-outweighed the Younger Generation Can Be Ungrateful

Dear Ann Landers: This letter is for the girl who "through some mixup" didn't invite her mother and dad to her wedding even though they lived in the same town. The bride asked you if she should remind her mother of her promise of several years back to give her the beautiful set of dishes which has been in the family for a long time. If I were the girl's mother she'd get the dishes all right - in a thouand pieces, right over her head. What's the matter with kids today that they treat their parents so lousy? No consideration. No respect. Nothing. I know of parents who aren't invited to their children's college graduation. The kids say, "It's no big deal. I may not go myself"...and nothing more is said about it. Parents who sweat blood to put their kids through for four years of college consider it a plenty big deal, but the spoiled brats never think of THAT. They wouldn't budge an inch to give their parents a little pleasure. If this is the "Now Generation" you can have it. - Charleston, W.

Dear Charles: Please don't hang labels with such reckless abandon. Not all kids are selfish and spoiled rotten. Some are a joy to their parents.

A girl who would neglect to invite her mother and dad to her wedding because of a "mixup" needs more help than Ann Landers can give her -

Petroleum Jelly Can Help Remove Spots

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY-The dull spot Joan wants to remove from her coffee table sounds like something that happened to my cedar chest. It is not easy to repair such marks. Flower pots kept on my cedar chest had nearly ruined the top but I did the following as advised by my grandmother: I covered it all thickly with petroleum jelly (right out of the medicine cabinet), left it on 24 hours, then wiped clean. This was repeated for three days and a soft cloth used to rub it clean and to a shine. I then used a wax polish and the part that was almost ruined does not show. — E.E.J.

DEAR GIRLS-This was a great discovery for me. Two antique tables, with a French finish, are transformed and did not even need wax afterward—they really gleam.—POLLY
Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY-I would like to know how to clean a 72-by-90 inch feather - and down-filled satin comforter that has spots from something being spilled on it.-WANDA

DEAR POLLY-My Pet Peeve is with those people who take dogs for their daily and nightly walks and allow them to mess up other people's property day after day. Of course, walking a dog is a "must," but I do not think it would be too much for owners to show some consideration for other people's property by carring a small bag and tool to clean up their dog's deposits. We are trying to keep our cities clean, so, dog walkers, please do your part. It would be greatly appreciated by others.-MRS. L.M.L.

DEAR POLLY-I like to iron my sheets, so I got a board of pressed wood four feet long, about 181/2 inches wide and padded it with an old blanket and sheet. This is put on my regular ironing board and I can iron sheets and many other flat things much better and faster than with the narrow board. I would not want to be without it .- C.I.P.

The commission inadvertently changed some odd-numbered districts to even numbers. That would have left Sens. A. Basey Vanlandingham, D-Columbia, and William J. Cason, D-Clinton, out of a job for two years, since elections must be held in 1972 in the odd-numbered districts they now repre-

Dear Ann Landers: I read a quotation not long ago which might stimulate some thought and self-examination among your readers. "The person who is always knocking a friend will one day find no one at home.

Perhaps this explains why certain folks are friendless.

What are your thoughts on "friend-knockers"? Why do people do it? Do you have any ideas which might help us to understand these detractors? Lexington.

Dear Lex: The chronic knocker is insecure. Often, the qualities he most dislikes in others are the ones he despises in himself. Mudslingers and back-biters are lonely people. They may attract a small audience of listeners but they have no real friends.

Dear Ann Landers: I notice you have a healthy respect for the voice of experience, so perhaps you will print this letter for the mother of the 29-yearold son who lives at home. I speak from my own life story and I hope that mother out there

She is blaming her son for being a free-loader when the fault is hers. Why did she let him take advantage of her in such a shameless manner? I hope she wakes up soon and hands the big lug the mortgage and the bills, and says, "Look...you're part of this outfit, ante up." She should instruct him to do the marketing while she does the cooking and takes care of the house - let him know it's a 50-50 deal.

Rural Development From Two Sources

nation's large urban areas. increasing attention is being focused on what is known as "rural development." (RD).

Advocates of RD in Congress and the administration see it as a means of helping stem the tide of migration into the cities and suburbs. Over the years this trend has urbanized the nation to the point that today only 30 per cent of Americans are considered rural residents.

A frequently cited statistic notes that 70 per cent of the U.S. population lives on only 2 per cent of the land area.

And it is on this 2 per cent that America's environmental problems are most evident, the result of too many people living too closely together. It is no longer accurate to talk about America's "cities" as if they were separate, identifiable entities. We are actually building megalopolises in many parts of the country-unbroken urgan belts years to come. that grow at a cancerous rate.

The main thrust of RD would be economic. Through tax incentives, revenue sharing, federal grants and other means, industry would be increasingly inhospitable city.

As the problems mount for the encouraged to settle in rural areas, rather than add to the mounting urban congestion and pollution.

> RD, if it is to be successful, will require a delicate balancing act. Industrialization and development must be encouraged, but not at the expense of blighting the countryside and its appeal.

If pursued in an orderly and wellplanned fashion, RD could prove a valuable tool in keeping at least some of the people down on the

But we suspect that the future of the small town will best be assured, ironically enough, by the very problem that rural development is designed to reverse-urban congestion and decay.

As more and more city dwellers get fed up with the problems of urban life, the small town will become increasingly appealing. This trend is already evident in the nation, and will accelerate in the

So America's smaller towns stand to benefit not only from industrialization, but also from a national reaction against the

Kent State Probe Political Casualty

By CARL T. ROWAN

WASHINGTON - Americans like to think of themselves as a religious people, living by the teachings of Christ and His

which Matthew put this way: "All things whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them: for that is the law and the prophets."

But for every 10,000 Americans who commit that rule to memory, not one commits it to life. Were this not so, the Justice Department would today be caught in a storm of outrage over its decision not to submit to a federal grand jury the question of whether to indict the men who killed four students and wounded eight others at Kent State University.

If we lived by the Golden Rule, how could we fail to share the anger and anguish of the parents of those dead and maimed youngsters?

Who among us would easily forget, if our children had been the victims, that the Scranton commission called the killings "unnecessary, unwarranted, and inexcusable"? Would we not expect the Justice Department to be in the forefront of those determined to arrive publicly at a fair assessment of innocence and guilt?

If Americans lived by the Golden Rule, would they not be tormented by that report by the Board of Christian Social Concerns of the United Methodist Church asserting that the evidence suggests the National Guardsmen conspired to shoot those Kent students? Would we not do for Arthur S. Krause, father of 19-year-old Allison Krause, who was slain, what we would want done for us under the circumstances: give him a proper judicial forum for a determination as to whether his daughter was murdered, or shot down with just Alas, millions of Americans must conclude that the attorney general of the United States never heard of the Golden Rule. They must conclude that there is no "justice" in the Justice Department except as it dovetails with what John Mitchell regards as politically advantageous for this administration.

If the polls show (as they do) that a broad cross-section of Americans is contemptuous of student protesters, long hair, hippies, black militants and the sort. then don't let the Justice Department go out of the way to protect the rights, or lives, of these unpopular characters. You might alienate the silent majority.

Under this double standard of the great "law and order" pretenders, Guardsmen in Ohio and state troopers in Mississippi find that they can shoot down young people with impunity. A Black Panther can be killed in his bed in Chicago under "smelly" circumstances with nearly two years of political hanky-panky taking place before there are indictments

But if the mob howls for the freedom of Lt. William Calley, the wheels of "justice" grind incessantly, right up to the White House, to ensure that he is mildly punished for the murders of 22 South Vietnamese.

Perhaps this double standard will prove to be smart politics; but it is no service to the nation to foster the growing belief that certain kinds and classes of Americans simply cannot get justice.

Blacks have felt this way for a long time, and if the "do unto others" credo were really accepted in this country, whites would see the inherent absurdity of blacks trying to get justice in Mississippi when the state highway patrol is lily-white and the entire court, prison and parole machinery is bereft of black influence or power. The situation is not much different in the other

So we get a growing number of blacks who feel that the jails and penitentiaries are full of black "political prisoners." We get blacks who turn to angry separatism, who resort to arms and violent shootouts with policemen and prison officials.

Whites who are tormented by notions of the Golden Rule may smuggle arms, or otherwise aid, those blacks they believe to be the victims of legal injustices.

More and more young whites, hopelessly dismayed by their government's hypocritical actions in matters like the Kent State killings, turn to violent radicalism.

And we are all losers.

Thirty-five years ago the noted lawyer, Clarence Darrow, observed that "there is no such thing as justice-in or out of court.'

Most Americans dismissed that observation then as just bitter overstatement. In a religious nation governed by the Golden Rule, of course there was justice!

But the way things go in America these days millions of people are easily convinced that there is neither justice nor a Golden Rule.

PUBLIC BE DAMNED."

Merry-Go-Round

Lindsay Gets Cozy With McGovern

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON - Now that he has changed his political spots, New York City's Mayor John Lindsay is trying quietly to cozy up to Sen. George McGovern, D-

The mayor is willing to back McGovern for the Democratic presidential nomination, say insiders, as long as the senator thinks he has a chance. In return, Lindsay would like an understanding with McGovern, if he should ever abandon the race, that he would throw his support to the mayor.

Democrats might consider it unseemly, Lindsay feels, if he should begin his career as a Democrat by immediately going after the presidential nomination. Since Lindsay and McGovern have largely the same constituency, the mayor believes it would be better strategy for him to support McGovern at first.

Lindsay began buttering up McGovern even before announcing his decision to become a Democrat. The mayor notified the other Democratic presidential prospects by mail, but he telephoned McGovern on the campaign trail in Texas.

Later, Lindsay put through another call to McGovern, reaching him in the Virgin Islands, to suggest that they sit down together for a political huddle. Whether Lindsay and McGovern make a private pact, however, remains to be negotiated.

The White House, in its feud with AFL-CIO President George Meany, is quietly spreading the word that he's too old and ought to be retired.

White House aide George Bell telephoned Arch Booth, executive vice president of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, last Friday and urged him to put out a statement calling for the retirement of all labor leaders over 70.

The release would be aimed, of course, directly at the truculent, 77-year-old AFL-CIO boss. Booth happily issued a statement accusing Meany of preaching "stone age economics." But the Chamber of Commerce executive feared a call for labor leaders to retire at 70 would also apply to businessmen and congressmen in their 70s who aren't ready to retire.

* * * Roger Stevens, the Lord High Poobah of the Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts, has called our recent column on the center "erroneous in practically every respect."

We are happy to amend our column with additional facts that make it clear the situation is even worse than we originally

Stevens insists that he was "unaware" an article critical of the center had been prepared for the Saturday Review by Wolf Von Eckardt, the Washington Post's architecture critic.

The fact is that Stevens contacted Von Eckardt and asked to see him about his article. Stevens also telephoned William Patterson, publisher of the Review, about the same article. The suppression of Eckardt's article, Stevens insists, was not done at his request. We never said it was. But the Saturday

Center to publish the center's magazine-

And the man who will edit the center's program-magazine, Review music critic Irving Kolodin, took part in the decision to suppress Von Eckardt's article, according to Review managing editor Roland Gelatt.

having done this, kolodin then wrote an article praising the center and defending it against its critics. The Review made his article the cover story, complete with a photograph which managed to hide the building's clumsy design.

Although International Telephone and Telegraph, one of the center's financial benefactors, has landed all the center's other contracts, Stevens says: "All contracts were let under the usual government procedures after advertising

This flatly contradicts what the man in charge of the bidding, executive director for engineering William Schmidt, told us. Discussing the center's maintenance contract, Schmidt acknowledged: "It was not a publicly advertised procurement as would be normal under federal regulations."

Stevens also implies that we never bothered to check the records before writing about the center's relationship with ITT. However, my associate Joe Spear spent 90 minutes with a trio of center officials during which he was flatly refused permission to see the documents on the maintenance contract.

Spear then asked for some of the figures, at least, relating to the deal. Schmidt again refused, claiming such disclosures "would compromise the negotiation process."

should be said that he has given tirelessly of both his time and money to the Kennedy Center. He has contributed $100,000 from his pocket to the project, has served without pay as its chairman and has paid nearly all his own expenses in connection with the job.

By DOUG KNEIBERT

Graham Gardiner, true to his word, has sent me copies of some London newspapers. Among them is The Times, where Graham is chief pressman.

And a joy they are to read. The writers in both the tabloid Daily Mail and the Sunday Express have a bouncy, personal style that is the envy of some of their more "straight" American counterparts.

By contrast, The Times, despite her typographical face-lift, remains austere and slightly forbidding. But for feeling the Establishment pulse, with an occasional flourish of the Age of Empire that was, she The Times' personal columns remain a center of interest in the paper. Here are a something to your advantage." Do it. Chris, and cut us in! "KAHALA meet me at 8 B.C.L.U. always, Olydia:" No doubt a fog-shrowded rendezvous on London Bridge, but for what

Or, if you like to hearken back to the days of Stanley and Livingston: "EXPEDITION LEADERS wanted for Asia-Africa."

Why doesn't someone spice up the "personals" column in The Democrat and Capital in like manner?

The following editorial, entitled "Put Up or Shut Up," is reprinted from the Pittsburg (Kan.) Headlight-Sun. It was brought to my attention by a friend who thought it might have some local interest: John Greninger of Greenfield, Mo., may well be the United States Chamber of Commerce "Man of the Year" this year. Greninger has just done what all presidents of chambers of commerce have felt like doing but seldom have the courage to do. He has received the approval of his board of directors to raise the dues

But he didn't just raise them 5 per cent or 10 per cent. Or even 100 per cent

He raised them 400 per cent.

Chamber of Commerce members in the small town about 60 miles east of Pittsburg had been paying $30 per year in dues. As of April 15. dues now are $120 per year. (Pittsburg Chamber of Commerce membership dues are one-half that - $60 per year.)

Does Greenfield have any members left in its Chamber of Commerce?

"We've had some who had dropped out come in and take out new memberships," a surprised Greninger relates. "I was very dubious of it when we first announced the increase. But I'd have to say now that it looks very encouraging."

Greenfield had 25 members in its Chamber of Commerce as of April 15. Greninger said Monday he is hoping to double that number under the new dues schedule. He said the potential number was about 100

"We're like a lot of other Chambers," Greninger says. "We have had a lot of projects we wanted to do but we never had any money to do them with. And we had a number of businessmen who wouldn't join because they said we never did anything.

"With a new lake in the area (Stockton) we decided it was time we did something to let people know we're around. Most of our present members indicated it was okay with them (the dues increase) so we just decided to do it.'

Chambers of Commerce throughout the nation will shake their heads when they hear about Greenfield, Mo., and its 400 per cent increase in dues. We'd guess the businessmen in Greenfield are shaking their heads, too, for they now face a "put up or shut up"

Three cheers for John Greninger and the Greenfield Chamber of Commerce!

Violence Breaks Soledad Hearing

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) -After a violent, blood-spattered court hearing, a Sept. 20 trial date has been set for two surviving Soledad Brothers accused of murdering a prison guard more than a year and a half ago.

The club-and fist-swinging melee erupted Thursday after Doris Maxwell, mother of defendant John Clutchette. shouted a vulgarity at the judge in a pretrial hearing and he ordered her ejected.

Two black men jumped up and struggled with police officers and several black women spectators pushed toward Mrs. Maxwell. All were separated from the judge and defendants by a bulletproof glass partition erected in anticipation of possible trouble.

A dozen police tactical squad officers rushed in, swinging riot

Two bailiffs, three policemen, and a spectator were injured in the violence and two men were arrested.

One of those arrested was Philip Jake Price, 25, of Oakland, Calif. Officers hustled him out of the room but he fought his way back moments later with blood streaming from wounds over his eyes.

While baton-wielding officers pushed and knocked several men and women spectators to the floor, Price was pushed down in a corner, handcuffed and led away.

Mrs. Maxwell fell to the floor in the courtroom aisle during the disorder. Police said "she got up and walked out after the thing was over." She was not hurt, police said.

Price's brother, Earl M. Price, 27, of Oakland, also was arrested and booked for investigation on the same charges.

Mrs. Maxwell's outburst came in a hearing for Clutchette, 28, and Fleeta Drumgo, 26, before Superior Court Judge Carl M. Allen.

Their codefendant, George Jackson, 29, was one of six men at San Quentin.

Tap Water Generally Free of Viral Germs

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb - We frequently get virus, and our four small children often contract a variety of infections in addition to virus. We wonder if a water purifier attached below the kitchen sink would help. A water softener salesman contended that it would remove germs. We use water for drinking and also for mixing with frozen orange or grape juice. What about bottled natural spring water?

Dear Reader — Even if it is true that a water purifier removes germs, the water would first have to contain significant amounts of germs for it to add anything useful. Public Health water regulations require a rather safe level of chemicals in the water to prevent water-borne disease, which should adequately solve the problem. Most water softeners are used to remove chemicals that harden water rather than to remove "germs."

Moberly Escapee Captured on I-70

FULTON, Mo. (AP) - Thomas Bernard Carney, 25, who escaped from jail at Moberly ear-ly Wednesday, was captured Thursday afternoon on Interstate 70 about eight miles northeast of Fulton.

The highway patrol said Carney, alias Ronald Brooks, of Newton, Mass., was being held on drug charges in Moberly and also is wanted for jumping bail on a marijuana charge in Carbondale, Ill., a year ago.

Ruby Mae Haynes, 20, of St. Louis, was arrested with Carney Thursday and was charged with aiding his escape.

killed last Saturday in an abortive escape attempt at San Quentin Prison. Three white guards and two white convicts also were killed.

The three blacks from Los Angeles were indicted on charges of beating a white guard to death in January 1970 at Soledad Prison near Monterey a few days after a guard had shot three black prisoners to death during what authorities described as a racial brawl in the prison exercise

Just before she was taken out, Mrs. Maxwell shouted: "Judge Allen ... you ain't no honorable judge." She then started sobbing and shouting unintelligibly. Her outburst came after Allen ordered stricken from the record all claims by attorneys for Clutchette and Drumgo that the two convicts and other San Quentin prisoners had been beaten since the Saturday escape try.

After several minutes of fighting, Allen ordered all spectators and newsmen cleared from the courtroom and called a recess.

When the hearing resumed more than half an hour later, Mrs. Maxwell was not in the courtroom. Drumgo's mother, Inez Williams, was there and sat quietly with other specta-

Thereafter, the hearing moved along without interruption as Allen denied a series of 11 defense motions and set the trial date.

He rejected pleas by Floyd Silliman, Clutchette's attorney, that the trial be delayed at least two months.

Silliman argued that press and broadcast coverage of the San Quentin break attempt had made a fair trial impossible.

Edward Barnes, Monterey County deputy district attorney and trial prosecutor, told Allen he could categorically deny all claims of beatings and brutality

For the two-drink minimum of about $5 they're now, as always, the best entertainment buy in town ... but the lounges in the Las Vegas Strip hotel casinos are on the way out, victims of profit and loss statements in a new era.

'It's a matter of economics,' says Sidney Gathrid, entertainment director for Caesars Palace, which closed its lounge last year. "Entertainment is very high priced and in a small room you just cannot make it

A lounge is a room seating 150 to 500 people, hard by the casino. They serve drinks onlyno food-and feature continuous entertainment with three or four acts headlined by a star making perhaps $25,000 a week. By contrast the main showrooms seat 600 to 1,200, serve dinner, and pay the entertainment world's elite $50,000 to $100,000 a week.

New trends in loungedom: putting in topless acts; converting them to parlors for Keno, a lottery game, with extremely good house odds.

It was only recently that making it pay became the object of running a lounge. They were long considered casino draws, an expense to be written off against getting players into the house and keeping the losers happy.

"The figures on what the lounge cost were the telling blow." said Gathrid in discussing the end of the Caesars Palace lounge.

"It was not profitable. They are a part of Las Vegas, but many things in Las Vegas are changing.'

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) -A public hearing has been ordered by the Iowa Pollution Control Commission on plans to build a $9 million diffuser pipe in the Mississippi River near Cordova, Ill., in connection with a nuclear power plant being built there.

Backyard Bonanza

The pipe would take hot water from the plant and spread it across the river. Without the pipe, the hot water would be dumped into the river in just one spot.

No date has been set for the public hearing, but Iowa Assistant Attorney General Cliff Peterson said it probably would be no sooner than October.

Peterson and a number of other officials attended a pollution control commission session to discuss the proposed pipe Thursday.

The commission agreed to allow the pipe to be built—but it stressed that it might never allow its use, depending on ecological and possibly other fac-

The pipe's construction has already been approved by the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency.

Opposition to the pipe came Thursday from an attorney for the Izaac Walton League of the Quad Cities area, Joseph Karaganis of Chicago. He said the pipe would endanger the river's ecology by raising the water temperature.

He urged the commission to prohibit construction of the pipe because "if you allow its construction it will be very difficult to deny the company the use of it" if the commission later finds the pipe would damage the river ecology.

Along those lines, Attorney General Richard Turner wrote the commission that it would be under heavy pressure to permit use of the pipe once it were

The commission took that opportunity to stress to the power firms that they would be "con-structing the diffuser pipe entirely at their own risk and with full knowledge that it may never be allowed to operate." and that if there are any harmful effects from the pipe the commission may put a stop to its use "without prior notice or hearing."

chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, who made a study of the securities industry for the New York Stock Exchange.

The Big Board is beginning to take steps to implement Martin's proposals. And the Securities and Exchange Commission this week said it would begin hearings Oct. 12 on the "desirability, structure and needs" of forming a national exchange

'The best price for a stock would come to a single market place," James W. Davant. president of the brokerage firm of Paine, Webber, Jackson & Curtis, said in discussing the probable effect on investors of the Martin proposal.

"This is an endeavor to get all buy orders and all sell orders to a single market place where you should be able to get the best execution.

Davant was a member of an advisory committee of Big Board members appointed to work with Martin.

Another Wall Street source said that under a national system, with all transactions appearing on a single ticker tape. the average investor would know more about what was going on in the market.

'He would see transactions of more stocks on the tape, and the reports would more closely reflect the market," this source said. "These more exact and broader reports would tend to minimize large price fluctua-

He also said an integrated system could put the small investor on "a more equitable status" with institutional investors-mutual funds, pension funds, banks and insurance companies. In recent years, the institutions have become a major influence on the market. Another advantage to the small investor, said a Wall Streeter, would be to bring uniformity to the regulatory activities of all exchanges.

The New York and American Stock Exchanges already have combined some computerized operational facilities to increase efficiency and cut costs, but a single market system-if it is accepted as the best solution to current problems-is a long way off, possibly 10 years.

Bosox Finally Break Kansas City String

By KEN RAPPOPORT

Associated Press Sports Writer After 12 straight defeats and the possibility of an embarrassing season sweep by the Kansas City Royals, the Boston Red Sox were on the verge of becoming the Red Faces.

The complexion suddenly changed, though.

Boston averted a series shutout with a 7-0 triumph over Kansas City Thursday night, whipping the Royals for the first time in a year. The Red Sox lost the last game of 1970 and the first 11 this year.

"The odds just caught up with them, the law of averages," said Boston Red Sox Manager Eddie Kasko.

The odds may have had something to do about it, but the Red Sox also had something else going for them-Ray Culp.

He pitched a six-hitter.

They had just beaten up on us," said the burly right hander. "They've got a good, young club. It took one of my better nights to get them out.

All the action Thursday night was in the American League as the Cleveland Indians trimmed the Milwaukee Brewers 10-6, the Baltimore Orioles beat the Chicago White Sox 8-7 in a rainshortened, eight-inning game and Washington drubbed California 8-3.

Before running into Culp, the Royals were close to doing something that only one team in the history of baseball has done-sweep a season series. The Baltimore Orioles shut out the Royals last year and, in fact, had won 23 straight over two seasons before Kansas City won a game this season.

The Red Sox made certain there wouldn't be another sweep this year as they scored four runs in the fifth off Ken Wright, including Reggie Smith's three-run homer.

Many Injuries Slow Practices

Coach Greg Cook of the Smith-Cotton Tigers' football squad lost the services of two players this past week due to injuries.

One, Curtis Temple, a letterman on the offensive and defensive line, had to drop football due to a neck injury he sustained last season.

The other serious injury was to a promising sophomore running back, Darrell Robinson. Robinson suffered a broken leg in Saturday night's scrimmage.

"Right now the injuries are one of our biggest problems," Cook noted Thursday morning after his varsity had worked out. "We have many of our players either going at half speed or just standing around nursing their injuries." First string quarterback Carl Berry was hobbled by an ankle injury on the first play from scrimmage Saturday night, but is listed as fully However, first-stringers Dennis Cooper, Chuck Meyers, Darrell Hughes and Jack Cook are hampered by injuries. Cooper and Meyers, who are slowed by ankle and neck injury respectively, are practicing.

But Cook, a defensive back, and Hughes, a lineman are not seeing contact. Cook is still suffering from a neck injury suffered in a car accident, while Hughes is nursing an injured

Other injuries reported are to Mike Boggs, Roger Byrd, Pete Kostopolus, Bob Woodman, Dallas Heaton, John Drenon and Jay Weaver.

Mike Arnold, a starter in the backfield last year, is out with a kidney ailment, and will see only punting duty, at least for the first half of

On the brighter side of the picture, Cook said, .. our defensive unit is ahead of their progress of a year ago..." But he was also quick to point out that the offensive timing and progress is behind that of 1970 due to the tremendous number of injuries.

On last week's scrimmage, Cook said that standout performances were turned in by Dennis Cooper and Dan Knieval. Cooper is a guard on offense and a defensive linebacker. Knieval, a sophomore, is an offensive tackle and a defensive linebacker.

"Most of our experienced players are linemen and their performances have pleased us so far," the Tigers' head coach concluded.

Another scrimmage is scheduled for Saturday

Giants To N.J.

NEW YORK (AP) - New Jersey Gov. William T. Cahill went to New York Thursday and came home with a football team, the New York Giants, who signed a 30-year lease to play in a state-owned stadium to be built in New Jersey by Giants' owner and president Wellington Mara signed the lease assuring that his team will move to the planned 75,000-seat stadium to be built in the Hackensack River Meadowlands. David A. "Sonny" Werblin, former New York Jets owner and now chairman of the New Jersey Sports and Exposition Authority, signed for the state.

The lease gives the Giants an option to renew and calls on the team to pay an annual rent of 15 per cent of ticket sales revenues. The Giants and the state will share all revenues from stadium concessions.

There will be parking space for 25,000 cars and 400 buses and all parking revenues will go to the state authority.

Cahill said, "It's a truly great day for the State of New Jersey and as great a day for New York Giant fans and all the citizens of New York."

The governor said the new Giant Stadium would be "another bridge between New York and New Jersey."

The signing Thursday culminated six months of executive and legislative planning by the Cahill administration to bring New Jersey its first major league sports franchise.

Legislation creating the sports authority and authorizing the construction of a major sports complex on 750 acres of the meadowlands in East Rutherford was passed by the State Senate and Assembly and signed by Cahill last spring.

Ultimate plans for the complex include a racetrack, a baseball stadium, and an exposition and convention center. The project is expected to cost more than $100 million. The 10 or 15 thousand more.'

Construction cannot begin until the money has been raised through bonds and the state must obtain a racing license before the bonds may be issued. Cahill said the state would apply immediately to the State Racing Commission for the license.

Several suits have been filed challenging the State Sports Authority. The chief suit was filed by the state against the authority to test its constitutionality.

The case is before Superior Court Judge Morris Pashman of Bergen County and arguments will be heard Sept. 30.

Cahill said the guiding force State Treasurer Joseph McCrane, a former tackle at West Point.

Each family dreams of the day it can get into its own house and get away from its inlaws.'

The Giants have never had their own stadium, but have always been the tenants of other teams or organizations.

'It's possible we might use two quarterbacks in a game," Gass said. "With the talents these two players have, you can vary your offense just by changing one player, the quarterback.

The Cowboys have two of the league's top runners returning, tailback Bobby Cole and flanker Dick Graham, State's best game-breaker in years. Graham handles the punt and kickoff return chores and had a 98vard touchdown kickoff return against No. 1 ranked Nebraska

Cleveland Vann, a sophomore, will be the fullback. Flanker Reuben Gant is another sophomore speedster who could help the Cowboys tremen-

The offensive line is inexperienced but will be 22 pounds heavier than last year without losing any speed. It will be dotted with sophomores, products of Oklahoma State's best freshman squad in years.

'Our offense will be more varied than it has been," Gass says. "We threw the ball a little more last year than we wanted to. We'll do a little more running this season."

Gass said the Cowboys hope to be a strong as last year on defense and feels "we are in a better position to play a strong defense than a year ago."

End Don Geier and guard Gilbert Barnes were starters in last year's defensive line. Barnes weighs 235, and Geier 228. Junior John Allen, 238, will be the other guard.

Mostly veterans will patrol the secondary with Eugene Jefferson and Tom Carraway at cornerbacks. Senior Glen Bonner will be the free safety and Joe Crews, another senior, a linebacker.

Injured safety Lee Stover, a junior, will be out of action for three to four weeks. Sophomore Travis Wilkey may earn a starting role by the time the Cowboys open their season here Sept. 11 against Mississippi State.

'There are a number of things that we still don't know," said Retzlaff. "We don't know whether incentives and bonuses would be considered valid or invalid. For these and other things we'll just have to wait and find out.

Walter Kennedy, commissioner of the National Basketball Association, said he was not surprised at the ruling because the league does not believe pro basketball should be exempt.

'We did not ask for any exemptions," he said. "Some of the clubs were confused and asked us to find out what we could. We sent out answers to their questions.

the team since its inception as an original American Football League franchise in 1960.

The Broncos have never had better than a .500 season. Last year looked like a departure from that pattern when the team broke to a 4-1 record. But the Broncos quickly fell apart, dropping five in a row and finishing 5-8-1—identical to their 1969 mark.

By now, those fans have grown increasingly restive, and Coach Lou Saban can hardly ignore the rumblings.

In an attempt to shake things up, Saban completed no less than 15 trades in the off season. The search for a consistent quarterback, which has repeatedly eluded the Broncos, got primary attention.

The top two signal-callers, Steve Tensi and Pete Liske, departed. No. 3 man Alan Pastrana remained, to be joined by six newcomers, including Don Horn and Steve Ramsey. Horn, Bart Starr's under-corps is veteran Al Denson, who ranked third in the American Conference last season in receptions. In his place, who knows? The Broncos are counting, perhaps too much, on the blooming of rookie Dwight Harrison. Denver's No. 2 draft choice out of Texas A&I, Harrison apparently has everything it takes to make it big, except experience.

'He's the best I've seen as far as raw material is concerned," Saban said.

Tight end Jim Whalen caught 36 passes good for 503 yards in 1970, but after him there's little else, unless the statistics lie. The ball-carrying situation is a good deal more certain. Ironman Floyd Little led the conference with 209 carries and 901 yards rushing. Bobby Anderson, slated to be Little's sidekick this year, gained 368 yards in only 83 tries in 1970.

North's four diamond bid was one of those special gadgets. It showed very strong heart support and diamonds void. South went into Blackwood. He thought of a grand slam after his partner showed three aces, but settled for six because he did not see much chance to ruff all five of his diamonds.

Against any other lead, South could take the black aces and make all 10 trumps separately, but now he could only score nine tricks with the trump suit. He had to get his 12th trick from either clubs or diamonds. He could not afford to play a second trump since he had to ruff three diamonds in dummy.

South worked all this out before playing to the first trick. Then he carefully overtook dummy's eight of trumps with his 10. He had seen that it was essential to start his cross ruff with a diamond.

The next seven plays were a diamond ruff; the ace of clubs; a club ruff with the four of trumps (South could not afford to ruff high); two more diamond ruffs and two more club ruffs.

This left South with two high trumps, two diamonds and a spade. Dummy held the good queen of clubs and the four spades that were there at the start. South's two trumps pulled West's; the ace of spades was an enthe ace of spades was an entry to dummy and the queen of clubs was the 12th trick.

Mrs. Maxine Griggs, 405 West Tenth, won the Sesquicentennial Costume award at the Missouri State Fair Wednesday and promptly turned her $500 check over to Roger Garlich, director of the Children's Therapy Center. Mrs. Griggs, who bought the dress in a chest at an auction, cited the outstanding work being done by the center as the reason for her contribution. The winning ensemble will be placed on permanent display at Maxine's Gourmet House. (Democrat-Capital Photo)

Fisherman Says River Is Cleaner

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. (AP) - In the old days, as George Cordonnier tells it, they used to say about the Missouri River "it's too thick to drink and too thin to plow. But Cordonnier, St. Joseph's superintendent of streets, says that in the last six to eight years, with more emphasis on pollution abatement, "the river's cleaner than it's ever been.'

Cordonnier is about as qualified as anyone to attest to the condition of the stream in the St. Joseph area. Now 59, he's been fishing the river and its coves since he was 14 and continues to spend anywhere from 20 to 40 hours a week on its

"I used to do it for a living back in the Depression," he

Now it's a habit he enjoys with his sons, David, 32, and Michael, 28 - a thing of family tradition since Cordonnier's father was a Missouri River steamboat captain.

Besides an improvement in the quality of the water, Cordonnier has noted an increase in the number of game fish.

"I don't know where they come from," he said, "but now there are bass, crappie and pike. In the past it was catfish, carp and buffalo fish.

The Coronnier sideline is a vear-round venture with "more fish in the wintertime than in the summertime.

retail fish markets in the St. Joseph area.

Cordonnier, who expressed optimism over continued improvement of the stream's quality, said he is vigilant for pollution from the standpoints of fisherman and city official.

"There's been an effort to restrain them from dumping the hot water wastes into the river," he said. "I only hope it's successful."

AUTHORIZED DEALERS CHRYSLER Excise Tax on cars

615 W. Main

Buy now and Chrysler Corporation will pass on to you any refund of the Federal Excise Tax on cars if, as proposed by President Nixon, it's repealed by Congress. So don't wait.

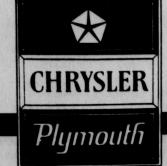

If you've been holding off on that new car because you're not sure how the proposed repeal of the excise tax affects you, we've got great news.

We have been informed that if Congress repeals the tax, retail purchasers who have taken delivery of new cars between the effective date of retroactivity (President Nixon proposed August 16, 1971) and the date on which the tax is repealed will receive refunds from the Government through Chrysler Corporation of the amount of any excise tax included in the price of the new cars they purchased.

It is estimated that refunds will average approximately $200. This, of course, is only an average, with actual amounts depending on the model you select. Don't wait. We've got a big selection in stock right now. So hurry in now and save on that new car you've been putting off.

The refund will be made automatically and won't require a claim on your part.

Why go anywhere else? Close out prices mean big savings.

Discuss Mental Health

At a meeting Wednesday afternoon, Pettis Countians and staff members of the Mid-Missouri Mental Health Center, Columbia, discussed plans for a mental health clinic in Sedalia for children and teenagers. Among those who attended the meeting were, from left to right, Ron Kennedy, area youth specialist with the University of Missouri Extension Center; Lyle Baier, the Columbia center's director of social service; Dr. Robert Edmonds, Sedalia pediatrician; and Miss Judy Ames, the Center's community relations director. (Democrat-Capital Photo)

Annual $104,000 Grant

Mental Health Services Benefit

Pettis County is one of 10 central Missouri counties that will benefit from an eight-year, $104,000 a year federal grant for expanded mental health services for children. The amount covers 90 per cent of the expenses for staffing the new program and the remaining 10 per cent will come from the state.

The announcement was made Wednesday afternoon at a meeting of Mid-Missouri Mental Health Center officials from Columbia with Ron Kennedy, of the University of Missouri Extension Center; Herman Wallace, of the Pettis County Welfare Department; Dr. Robert Edmonds, a Sedalia pediatrician; Mrs. Ruth Shaffer, of the Sedalia Counseling Center; and William Shrum, Moniteau County. The meeting was held at the Sedalia Counseling Center.

Kennedy, Wallace and Shrum are area members of the Columbia Mental Health Center's advisory board.

As a first step toward implementing the new mental health program, Pettis County is required to set up a five-member council, of which Kennedy and Wallace will be exofficio members. The three others to be elected must be persons taking an active part in a mental health program for area children, according to Miss Judy Ames, community relations director of the Mental Health Center.

The first duty of the council will be to find a suitable site for a proposed mental health clinic, which will be staffed by a psychiatric social worker.

The group discussed the possibility of utilizing a section of the Sedalia Counseling Center for the clinic, which could be opened as early as October, Miss Ames

This and other details concerning the proposed local mental health clinic will be discussed at an organizational meeting at 1:30 p.m. Sept. 8 at the Sedalia Counseling

Dr. Edmonds told the group of the dire need for a specialized agency to meet the mental health problems of area children. He pointed out that his patients include nearly 200 children with varying degrees of neurological problems. "I've been handling it entirely on a private basis without any organized support," he said.

He added that while his patients can get "outstanding speech and hearing evaluation and physical therapy" at the Children's Therapy Center, there still is a need for a psychiatric social worker and a specialized clinic here.

Lyle Baier, director of social services for the Mental Health Center, pointed out that the proposed clinic will be geared to children and teenagers and therefore will complement the work of the Children's Therapy Center and the Sedalia Counseling Center. The clinic's main asset will be a fulltime social worker who will make house calls as well as have an office in the county,

Hope To Avoid Controls

WASHINGTON (AP) - The administration's economic planners "most devoutly" seek to avoid general, across-theboard price and wage controls when the 90day freeze ends, a White House economist said Thursday. Herbert Stein, chief of President Nixon's presidential task force planning for Stage Two of the anti-inflation strategy, said the group is considering the whole range of possibilities. Interviewed on the United States Chamber of Commerce weekly radio program. Stein said he prefers not to speculate on the possible outcomes, but added: "There is one that we would most devoutly hope to avoid and that is movement in the direction of general wage and price control.

"We regard Stage Two as a stage in the transition from the freeze to free markets, and so we will be looking at various possibilities of trimming the coverage, of adopting the guidelines, of invoking the cooperation in one way or another."

In other developments:

-Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., said Nixon's economic program is unfair to the working man and must be changed by the Democratic majority in Congress. He urged Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana in a letter to call a party caucus soon or consider changes.

Sen. Robert P. Griffin of Michigan, the assistant Republican leader, said labor union leaders as well as other elements of the economy will be consulted before plans are made for actions beyond Nov. 12. He criticized politicians he said "have been trying so desperately to undercut and destroy President Nixon's prescription for economic recovery," saying: "When each new car buyer stands to gain $200- and when the nation stands to gain thousands of new jobs-if Congress repeals the 7 per cent auto excise tax, how can Sen. George McGovern say this proposal benefits only big business?'

For Thieu

Political Crisis Serious Dilemma

SAIGON (AP) - South Vietnam's current political crisis has presented President Nguyen Van Thieu with the most serious dilemma of his career and created a whopping headache for the Nixon administration.

Should Thieu carry through his plan to hold the presidential election Oct. 3 as scheduled, the lone campaigner could effectively negate America's announced effort to build a system in which the South Vietnamese people can choose their own leaders and form of government.

Thieu appears determined to hold the election despite the political consequences at home and abroad, but U.S. Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker reportedly believes a compromise solution, which would preserve at least the facade of a democratic election, still is possible.

Both Vietnamese and Westerners, believe, however, that even new elections would be tainted by the charges of rigging and repression which have marked the current campaign.

Well-informed Western sources say that despite evidence to the contrary, Thieu may not have made his final decision on whether to go ahead with the election.

Palace officials said Thursday that Thieu will make no public statement on the presidential election until after Sunday's lower house balloting. Bunker has met five times with the president in the past week in efforts to find an acceptable solution to the political dilemma U.S. officials have said privately a one-man race could lead to a reassessment by the Nixon administration of its Vietnam policy, possibly including reduced aid. Sen. Robert J. Dole of Kansas, Republican national chairman and a close confidant of President Nixon, told an interviewer here last week that an aid cut by Congress could result. But Thieu so far appears to be banking on the idea that the United States cannot afford to abandon him or his government-regardless of how he conducts the election.

He must, nonetheless, reckon with the effect of such an election on American public opinion and particularly on Congress.

Thieu also must reckon with flagging political support at home. There is evidence that Thieu's support has dwindled considerably since both Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky and retired Gen. Duong Van Minh quit the race, despite American pressure, charging that the election was being rigged.

Ky's name remains on the ballot through a legal technicality which could allow Thieu to claim that the voters do have a choice, although Thieu is the only candidate campaigning.

The alternatives now open to Thieu under South Vietnam's constitution are limited:

-To have the Supreme Court declare the election law unconstitutional and order a new law enacted.

-To have the National Assembly vote to postpone the election for three months, until an opponent can be found.

-To resign along with the vice president, as Ky has proposed, with the chairman of the Senate to be named president pro tem and new elections to be organized within 90 days.

He will almost certainly not accept the third course of action, since it was proposed by his archpolitical enemy, and his possible acceptance of the other alternatives may be governed in part by his strong reluctance to appear a pawn of the United States by yielding to American pressure.

And this, some Western observers believe, may mean that the United States once again has miscalculated in applying its policy. "It is also axiomatic in Vietnamese politics that once you have your opponent by the throat, you strangle him-which is precisely what Thieu wants to do to Ky," said one Vietnamese, a student of his country's politics.

Most uncharacteristically, observers believe. Thieu has painted himself into a political corner-trapped by the desire to consolidate his power, and at the same time faced with dwindling support at home and the threat of serious repercussions in his relations with the United States

"Thieu is out on a limb," said one prominent South Vietnamese legislator, and there is no way back. The situation is beyond the grasp of the Americans or anyone else to change it."

Cited For Contempt For Refusing Order

FT. MCPHERSON, Ga. (AP) - A former GI who invoked the Fifth amendment was cited for contempt Thursday after refusing a military judge's order to testify in the My Lai court-martial of Army Capt. Ernest L. Medina.

Col Kenneth Howard, the military judge, released Frederick Widmer, Lower Burrell, Pa., in custody of his military lawyer and referred the case to U.S. District Court for a hearing Monday.

The government accuses Medina of responsibility for "not less than 100" murders of South Vietnamese civilians by failing to intervene while his troops killed. It also contends he personally killed one woman and ordered a young boy shot.

Howard acted after Maj. William Eckhardt, the prosecutor, said Widmer's testimony was essential to the Army's case against Medina, who is charged with assault and with the premeditated murder of 102 civilians at My Lai.

The prosecutor said he would not withdraw Widmer as a witness, and the judge said that left him no alternative but to cite the witness for contempt.

Widmer, who was to have been the Army's 30th witness, refused to testify on grounds that a federal grant of immunity from prosecution did not fully protect his right against self-incrimination. The ex-GI was a member of Medina's command group when the officer led an infantry company on an attack in My Lai more than three years ago. One government witness testified earlier in the trial that Widmer shot a boy as the command group passed through the Vietnamese village. Capt. Franklin Wurtzel, the assistant prosecutor, argued that the government's case would be seriously damaged without Widmer's testimony. "He saw the shooting of noncombatants and participated in the shooting of a small child and an old man in the immediate proximity of Capt. Medina," Wurtzel said. The Army is trying to prove that Medina was responsible for the My Lai massacre because he failed to intervene after learning his troops were slaying civilians without provocation.

Sedalia Day

Fair Attendance Continues High

The fourth record attendance in a row was set Wednesday at the Missouri State Fair as 35,488 persons turned out for Governor's, Legislator's and Armed Forces Day. The attendance figure was only slightly above last year's mark of 32,555 set on the same day. Totals for this year's fair now stand at 230,768, compared with 207,170 at the same time a year ago. Fair officials are shooting for a half-million attendance figure this

The biggest percentage of businesses in Sedalia closed down for the fair Thursday. in order to give employes a chance to see the attractions on Sedalia, Kansas City and St. Louis Day.

Attendance marks were expected to soar above last year's peak for the same day, as a huge crowd was expected to hear recording stars Roger Miller and Mark Lindsay. Dionne Warwick, originally scheduled at the free grandstand show, was reportedly in a Los Angeles hospital suffering from an acute gallstone attack. Also performing at last night's show were the Ding-A-Ling sisters.

Other attractions at the fair Thursday included the annual chicken barbecue contest in the afternoon, Kicksville bands, the third straight day of harness and pony racing and a free horse show in the evening in the coliseum. The two-mule hitch class was to be one of the prime contests at the horse show,

Thursday's judging included the Angus cattle, a 4-H and FFA Brown Swiss and Holstein show, goats, rabbits and various amateur talent shows. Bands at the fair for Sedalia Day were from Slater, Nevada, Wheatland and Palmyra. A total of 88 state representatives and 12 senators turned out for the fair Wednesday, accompanied by their families.

Gov. and Mrs. Warren E. Hearnes, various legislators and other state officials were treated to a luncheon and buffet dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Askew, secretary of the fair. About 1,000 persons attended the affair.

Gov. Hearnes took home the grand champion ham and an oil painting he admired as souvenirs of the fair. The ham, auctioned at the annual ham breakfast Wednesday morning for $950, was presented to the governor by Mrs. Maxine Griggs, owner of Maxine's Gourmet House.

The painting was presented to the governor by Charles Burditt of Mexico, a senior art student at Central Missouri State College, Warrensburg.

Mrs. Griggs also captured first place in the old-fashioned costume contest with an 1850 dress she bought at an auction sale for $2. She stated that she would donate the $500 first prize to the Children's Therapy

Second place winner in the contest was Mrs. Myrtle Earson, Moberly, while third went to Jim Thomas, Belle. Fourth place was won by Mrs. Kenneth Gorin. Higginsville. The governor's trophy for the best 4-H regarding zero population growth is "when," not "if." To that question has lately been added a "how."

Population 'Panic' Should Be Avoided

A new nonprofit Coalition for a National Population Policy, formed by Dr. Milton Eisenhower and Sen. Joseph D. Tydings, D-Md., with representatives from 15 major conservation and population groups on its executive committee, has called for the United States to declare zero population growth-ZPG-official national policy. A congressional resolution to that effect has been signed by 33 senators and 25 representatives.

The coalition would reach this goal by a number of strategies, including reform of the tax laws, which it claims encourages very large families and penalizes childless couples and the unmarried.

"Either we must act now to develop national, voluntary policies and programs to stabilize U.S. population size or face the possibility of a drastic deterioration in the quality of national life and the collapse of many of our cherished institutions under the sheer weight of numbers," warns Tydings.

This is the accepted wisdom today. But is doom inevitable and just around the decade unless we "act now?

A zero rate of increase in the United States starting immediately is not only "not feasible but I believe not desirable," says Ansley J. Coale, director of the Office of Population Research at Princeton.

He points out that to attain ZPG immediately, it would be necessary

Simple arithmetic long ago made to cut the birth rate about in half. it clear that the only question For the next 15 to 20 years, women would have to bear children at a rate that would produce only a little over one child per completed

> "At the end of that time we would have a very peculiar age distribution with a great shortage of young people," says Coale, "... much like that of a health resort.'

> The resulting social and economic disruptions represent too large a cost to pay for the advantage we might derive from reducing growth to zero right away, he says. A gradual approach is better, to allow us to adjust to a drastically changed population structure in which half of all Americans would be over 37 instead of 27, as is the case today.

How gradual?

Chicago University sociologist Donald J. Bogue flatly predicts that no more babies will be born in the year 2001 than will be born in 1971.

Already he points out, the WASP (White Anglo-Saxon Protestant) and Jewish populations are reproducing below replacement levels. Most of the country's recent slackened growth has been contributed by minority groups, such as blacks, Spanish-speaking Americans and Roman Catholics. whose birth rates are moderately above average.

The birth rate among these groups is now declining, he says.

Thus zero population growth is not only a desirable situation but one that apparently is coming whether Congress passes a resolution about it or not.

The U.S. Economy Is Seriously Ailing

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON - President Nixon's economy rattling, if it serves no other purpose, should jolt America out of its economic euphoria. For the unpleasant truth is that the U.S. is slipping.

The Japanese islands, just a few geographic dots on the globe, are rapidly world's greatest industrial power. The almighty dollar, the sun around which all other free currencies have revolved for a quarter of a century, has gone into eclipse.

American workers no longer produce the world's best goods. For too long, we have been confident and complacent. We have put private interests ahead of the national interest, ease before duty, luxury before

Our workers have been pampered, our corporations breast-fed from the Treasury, until they have lost their competitive edge. Such industrial lions as Lockheed and Penn Central, having been ripped up in the capitalistic jungle, have merely gone whimpering to the government trough. Like the lions that are fed daily in our zoological gardens, they no longer possess the keen instincts and reflexes necessary to survive in the jungle.

Unions and corporations alike are now squabbling for more spoils, rather than showing a patriotic interest in halting the nation's economic decline. Despite all the presidential blessings for the auto industry, for example, it took White House pressure to persuade Ford to roll back last month's price increase. And AFL-CIO boss George Meany, who considers himself a great patriot when it comes to denouncing Communists, thumbed his nose at a White House appeal to help stabilize the economy.

put ahead of patriotism by most Americans.

The Army is blundering ahead with the Cheyenne helicopter despite new evidence, compiled by the Army itself, that the aircraft is hopelessly unsuited for its

The latest move, the award of a $47.8 million contract to the financially troubled Lockheed Aircraft Corp., makes it seem the Nixon administration will go to any wasteful length to keep Lockheed afloat.

The Cheyenne is designed as a tankkilling gunship which would provide close air support for allied ground operations against enemy forces in Europe. It is loaded with ultra-sensitive electronic gadgetry to enable it to operate at night and in adverse weather

The Army has insisted on going ahead with the project even though both the Air Force and the Marines are also developing aircraft for similar use

Moreover, the Cheyenne has already cost more than twice what it was supposed to. In all, the public has spent $600 million so each branch of the military could have its own ground support aircraft. Of this whopping sum, the Cheyenne has consumed $435 million.

As if cost overruns and duplication were not enough, the Seventh Army in Europe has now come forward with a report seriously challenging the idea that a helicopter could provide air support in European combat.

The Seventh Army's report is being kept under wraps by the military. However, its findings are set forth in a draft study by Senators Charles "Mac" Mathias, R-Md., William Proxmire, D-Wis., and Rep. John Seiberling, D-Ohio.

"Conclusions from the Seventh Army Air Cavalry Evaluation in Europe," states the unpublished report, "show that helicopters, especially the Cheyenne, will be able to operate under poor weather conditions, but effectiveness is doubtful.

"In the case of the Chevenne, under conditions of very poor weather, the optical tracking system of the TOW missile becomes very doubtful and although the Cheyenne is effectively hidden from the enemy, so is the enemy hidden from it.'

Thus, despite the expensive electronic equipment, the Chevenne would still be ineffective at night and in bad weather.

In addition, the Chevenne would also be extremely vulnerable in an air support role. Adds the report:

"Of eight senior officers responding to questionnaires about the evaluation, seven mentioned helicopter survivability as an aspect of the air Cavalry concept that unfavorably impressed them.

The congressmen's report cites another evidence of the Cheyenne's weaknesses and makes a lengthy comparative study of the Air Force's AX, a fixed-wing aircraft for close air support which is presently under development, and the Marine Corp's Harrier, also a fixed-wing plane which is now in production.

'The Cheyenne is a weapons system of dubious utility, questionable reliability and phenomenal cost," the report says. "We recommend the Cheyenne project be terminated.

The report concludes that "the closesupport mission is performed most effectively with fixed-wing aircraft ... We recommend continued development of the AX." The report also recommends continued production of the Harrier through this year, which would leave the Marines with a total of 60 of the aircraft.

Footnote: The congressional report will be part of a series which will be published by the bipartisan Members of Congress for Peace Through Law.

Agnew Is Isolated From Top

By BRUCE BIOSSAT NEA News Analyst

WASHINGTON (NEA) - Vice President Spiro T. Agnew is more distressed than ever these days over the fact that President Nixon and his advisers leave him out of just about everything important they do.

Agnew is not a man of immense ego, but he does have his pride. And people who know him say he has been continuously offended by the President's neglect of him. Says a friend:

'When he isn't told in advance of decisions like the President going to China, the Vice President takes it as proof that Nixon and his top men put him down as a clown who isn't worth telling anything to.

That's the core of it, right there-Agnew's feeling that they think he is some kind of dumbbell

There is a practical side to it, of course. It might be considered vital for the Vice President to be warped into key decisions in the event something should happen to the President. It might also be thought simply useful for a man representing Nixon in foreign capitals and around the national speech-making circuit.

The President's announcement of intent to visit Peking came while Agnew was on his recent trip around the world. Airborne the morning after Nixon spoke, the Vice President was in visible anguish. Reporters saw him pacing in his cabin.

He also had been kept in the dark on some of the President's earlier overtures to Irritated over these repeated affronts, Agnew has developed a "don't give a damn" attitude which leads him to spout his own view of things wherever he pleases. Obviously, he finds ample opportunity, since he often disagrees with Nixon's

What it amounts to, again, is the Vice President in effect saying to himself that if they in the White House are not going to care about him, he's not going to care

One friend adds, incidentally, that he doubts Nixon and Agnew ever have any substantial private conversations, though they cross paths at official and social

Given this terrible estrangement, and it can't be described as anything less, the

There are some informed private judgments that the President would like to have Agnew off the Republican ticket in 1972. When soundings show quite generally around the nation (even in conservative places like Texas) that he is viewed as a drag, Nixon's course would seem clear. The trouble is, there is no nice way to do it. Dumping vice presidents is not a common practice since for a president it represents a kind of self-criticism. The easier thing, naturally, is to have Agnew say he doesn't want the job another time. But that's been talked of openly so much, it will inevitably be treated merely as a

Our bridge research has shown that Sir Lancelot du Lake was responsible for the rhyme "eight ever, nine never" back in the year 521. He first used it when someone asked him if he ever fought nine knights at the same time. Later he put it into use at the square-table bridge game.

Today, we find the peerless one sitting North. Sir Dinadan, the worst player in all England, opened the bidding with one spade.

With any other partner, Lancelot would have tried for a slam, but with Dinadan as declarer Lancelot decided to settle for game, rubber and a new partner. He merely bid four spades.

Unfortunately for Lance-lot, Dinadan had recently learned Sir Easley's slam convention and Blackwooded his way to seven. West opened the jack of clubs and Dinadan let it ride to his king. Then he looked at the ceiling and said, "How goes the rune. Methinks 'tis eight ever, nine never. Gad-zooks! That is it."

Dinadan played the ace of spades, dropped West's singleton king and after that start even he could not lose a trick.

West started to draw his sword, but returned it quickly to the scabbard when Lancelot said, "He who chal lengeth my partner, fights

Information Available At ASCS Office

The Pettis County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service office has joined the Internal Revenue Service as an information center concerning the wageprice freeze ordered by President Nixon Aug. 15.

Dick Dalton, executive director of the ASCS office. said, "Ours and all ASCS offices throughout the nation will function as information centers in all locations outside of highly urbanized areas.

The ASCS office's responsibility differs from that of the IRS since it will not handle complaints of alleged violations. Only official information will be distributed by the seven-member ASCS office, Dalton said.

The normal function of the ASCS office is to administer farm action programs of the U.S. Department of Agriculture on a local level. These services will be continued, Dalton said.

Request Testing For Boys

HARRISON, N.Y. (AP) Three teen-age boys, the sons of two Westchester County policemen, have been ordered to undergo psychiatric tests after being arrested and charged with the killing of 13 animals at a children's zoo.

Town Justice William R. Johnston ordered the three admitted to the county hospital "to determine their mental capability to stand trial.'

Arrested were Ralph Triano Jr., 17, and his brother Jeffrey, 16, the sons of Detective Ralph Triano of the Harrison Police Department, and John J. Henry, 16, son of a Scarsdale patrolman.

A crowd of several hundred townspeople gathered outside the police headquarters in this suburban New York community Wednesday when word spread that arrests had been made in the case.

Many had expressed shock over the multilation and killing of 10 rabbits, 2 pigeons and 1 hen at the tiny zoo in West Harrison Memorial Park Monday night. Only a baby monkey, a bantam rooster and two guinea pigs escaped. Police supplied no motive for the slaughter.

Attempts To Assist Hern Family

A special fund to assist the Daniel Hern family, 1007 East Third, is being set up by Mrs. Daisy Jeffries, 1017 East Sixth, to help with school and hospital expenses.

Last Monday, Floyd Hern, 10, was accidentally shot in the back by a .22 caliber westernstyle revolver while apparently playing with two other boys at the Elizabeth DeMois residence, 813 East Sixth. He was taken to Bothwell Hospital and then transferred to the University of Missouri Medical Center. He suffered a broken spine, and severe damage to his lower intestine.

It was thought Tuesday the boy might never walk again, but the next night, according to Mrs. Jeffries, he was able to move his right leg.

Mrs. Mary Yergens, publications office director at the Medical Center, said the boy's condition Thursday was satisfactory, though weak. Mrs. Yergens said that the boy's legs had improved to the point where he was now listed as being only partially paralyzed in both legs.

Mrs. Betty Hern, the boy's mother, has been at Bothwell Hospital for several days after undergoing major surgery. And on Monday, the day of the shooting, another Hern child, Rusty, 11, fell and injured her jaw, necessitating medical attention although the injury was not regarded as serious.

All of these medical problems coupled with the fact that there are nine other school-age children in the Hern family, made it obvious that help would be needed so they could start school this year, Mrs. Jeffries said.

Besides Floyd, the Hern children are Angela, 3; Kathy, 3; John, 13; Danny, 16; Melinda, 15; Rusty, 11; Mike, 14; Tracy, 4, and David, 5. Mrs. Jeffries said the children need clothes, food, and other items to attend school this fall. Some financial assistance is also needed, she said.

Mrs. Jeffries said that no charitable organizations had been contacted yet for assistance because of the rapid sequence of events since Monday. She said that the idea for the fund came to her Wednesday night after several ersons offered to help family on an individual basis. She said interest in helping the family had been expressed by some employes of Rival Manufacturing Co., where she

Sees Poor Response To Effort

John W. Swope, 612 East 11th, Tuesday termed the response to his one-man' campaign to get the barricades removed from Massachusetts at Broadway as poor. Swope Monday advertised inviting interested persons to fill out a coupon petitioning to get Massachusetts reopened on 12-months basis. The City Council recently limited traffic on a one-way basis on Massachusetts.

As of Wednesday, Swope said, he had received only four coupons supporting his cause.

Swope said that he had no objection to the one-way arrangement but he did not like the idea of the barricades at the intersection of Broadway and Massachusetts.

Swope indicated he was skeptical of the reasons behind the installation of the barricades. He said Mayor Jerry Jones told him that barricades were set up primarily to prevent "undesirable, hippietype dropouts" from mingling with students at Smith-Cotton High School.

Swope said a second reason given by the mayor and the councilmen he had talked with was the need to control traffic at the particular intersection. He said that he had discussed the issue with the mayor and councilmen on at least six different occasions. He also wrote Attorney-General John Danforth about his complaint and Danforth wrote back that the city had the authority to block off a street in this particular manner.

Abandoned Building Razed By Dynamite

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) - The abandoned Armour & Co. building in the Omaha stockyards was razed by dynamite Wednesday.

Five hundred pounds of dynamite were used to demolish the building and make room for the South Omaha Industrial Dis-

Render bers of the assembly's lower Resigns Position

WASHINGTON (AP) Frank Render was fired Thursday as Pentagon civil rights chief. A spokesman said Secretary of Defense Melvin Laird felt "there had not been enough action" to end racial discrimination in the armed Render, a 35-year-old black leader from Syracuse, N.Y., told a reporter he was asked to resign his $36,000-a-year post because of differences with Laird and other superiors over how to solve racial problems.

Saying he had no hard feelings, Render added: "It was basically because of my philosophy. My way of doing things is different than the way other people want things done.'

Render said he did not feel that he had been treated unfairly but added that "the action is sort of a surprise.'

He indicated the request for his resignation came from Asst. Secretary of Defense Roger Kelley, his superior, but said "I'm sure he couldn't do that without approval up the line," obviously meaning Laird.

Render's resignation was announced by Brig. Gen. Daniel James, a top Pentagon spokesman and one of the few black James said Render had told his superiors "he wishes to return to his former work" in education.

However, Render said wryly, "I am waiting for the thousands of offers to pour in." He said he was not sure what he was going to do after leaving the Pentagon Thursday. Appointed to the civil rights post more than 14 months ago, Render has been one of the highest ranking civilian blacks in the Pentagon hierarchy. Render has made repeated reports recommending a series of measures, including a more even-handed application of military justice of blacks and various ways of bringing commanders around to enforcing equal treatment of black servicemen. He has warned of potential explosions if black servicemen continue to feel that they're

Disney World: The Florida Spy Story

By DICK KLEINER

ORLANDO, Fla. - (NEA) -Someday, somebody will write a book about how they built Walt Disney World, the park southeast of here. It will be a first-class spy story.

The area the Disney agents bought — some 28,000 acres — was useless land. It was pockmarked with sinkholes and stands of pine and dotted with lakes and crisscrossed with

Paul McKenney, president-elect of the Orlando Area Chamber of Commerce, says it was unproductive.

"My daddy used to say about parts of south Georgia," McKenney says, "that it was ground so poor all it was good for was to hold the wool together. That was what that land where Walt Disney World is being built was."

About six years ago, rumors began spreading that somebody was buying up huge chunks of it. Nobody knew who was doing the buying, or for what purpose. There were rumors that Ford was going to build a plant there, that Howard Hughes was going to build a new Las Vegas, that it was to be a new jetport to handle SSTs.

It was, of course, the beginnings of Walt Disney World, but the Disney people wanted to keep it quiet, so the prices wouldn't zoom up. Disney's agents bought under assumed names, used post office boxes in Kansas City, put title into the name of a Miami bank and otherwise tried to disguise their . motives and presence.

Eventually, the secret came out. Actually, it was Walt Disney himself who inadvertently spilled the beans. An Orlando newspaperwoman, in Los Angeles for a press tour. asked him if he knew anything about the Florida land-buying. He didn't admit he did, but he didn't deny it, either, and she reached the right conclusion.

When the word got out, the prices did go up, and Disney's people did have to pay more on some parcels and, on others, they decided not to buy at all. There are still some landowners who are holding out, but the boat has long since sailed.

Once the land was assembled. the Disney prople faced another problem. Most of the land is in Orange County — curiously, Disneyland in California is in Orange County, too — but some was in neighboring Osceola County. And it cut across the boundary lines of several municipalities.

All these governmental entities had differing building codes. And, since the Disney engineers wanted to use new building methods, they found they were often stymied by the old codes.

One of Disney's hands, retired Gen. Joseph Potter, came up with the solution. He discovered that Florida law permitted the establishment of drainage districts, which could then operate pretty much as they chose.

They pushed through the Florida legislature the establishment of their own drainage district, called Reedy Creek Improvement District, which is now a functioning political entity. It passed its own building code, established its own fire department, supervises its own sewage and waste disposal. In fact, it does everything a governmental body does except have police powers. The Central Florida area, particularly around Orlando, is optimistic about what the park will do for its economy. There are a few dissidents — the Chamber of Commerce's McKenney says "there are always some people against change on general principles"

— but most feel it will lead to a

In fact, the chamber's main worry is that the park will attract too many people, and thus possibly lead to an increase in the area's welfare roll and vagrancy reports.
Already, Orlando's Salvation

Army reports an increase in its caseload, due to people who have come into the area looking for work at Walt Disney World.

"We estimate," McKenney says, "that there will be 13,000 motel rooms needed by the end of the year — and there will only be 9,000 ready in the area."

But basically, Orlando and the rest of Central Florida are bursting with pride. They figure they're about to be discovered.
